President's Report

The highlights of 2015 included the successful Annual Dinner which focussed on the first decade of the College, the London Reunion which included the attendance of the touring College cricket side, and the successful College Golf Day which raised funds for the SKOCA Scholarship Trust. The Boys' School Golf Day was also a profitable and well attended event.

The committee accepted two new members this year and with a number retiring or heading overseas, the full committee now totals 18, with two further 2015 leavers confirmed to join in 2016.

Old Collegian, Denis Currie was the guest speaker for the Annual Dinner, which more than 200 people attended. An auction was also hosted by OC Mike Gowan. The focus was the first decade at the College and this was clearly a success. 2016's focus for the Annual Dinner will be the 1960 decade with OC Air Vice Marshall, Peter Stockwell as speaker. In 2016, we will also be hosting a Boys' School first decade dinner in July/August.

The London Reunion Dinner attracted more than 50 attendees and the touring College cricket team, all smartly dressed in their formal SKC blazers. Old Collegians enjoyed talking with the team over dinner and many more OCs had attended some of the seven games the team played while in the UK. I attended the Eton and Harrow games and had the pleasure to meet a number of 1950-60's OCs who made a point of attending the closest cricket game to support SKC. A number have married and remained in the UK for last 40+ years but always enjoy reading 'Piper' and remain proud members of SKOCA.

More than 50 OCs and partners attended the Australian Reunion Dinner in Circular Quay in Sydney at which past headmaster, Reverend David Williams was guest speaker. Thirty-five OCs again had lunch on Saturday and attended the first Bledisloe Cup rugby match in the evening. This event continues to grow as OCs complete work experience in Australia.

The committee has joined forces with the careers department at the College and the College Parents and Friends. An email was sent by the department to SKOCA members seeking speakers for the careers evening and had a great response with more than 50 OCs offering to speak.

The committee is also supporting the archives department and archivist, Warwick Bell, and considers this is a key history link for many OCs, which helps foster the sense of belonging amongst members. It is also a valuable resource to promote greater philanthropy amongst the members as they prosper in their lives, and then give back to Saint Kentigern to help others learn and prosper.

We congratulate the Heads and the Trust Board on yet another successful year at Saint Kentigern, with record enrolment numbers across all three campuses. Fides Servanda Est.

President of the Old
Collegians Association

In Memoriam

We express our condolences to the families of these members of our community who passed away recently.

EVERETT PERRY

Mr Everett (Ev) Perry, who taught at Saint Kentigern College from 1960 to the end of 1963, passed away in September at the age of 87.

Mr Perry is remembered by Saint Kentigern Old Collegians not only as an inspiring history teacher but also as a coach of the 1st XV with a great interest in the game of rugby. He went on to become a senior teacher and later Principal of Tamaki College which he headed from 1971 until his retirement in 1986.

Mr Perry's son, Dr Geoff Perry, was a student at Saint Kentigern College and later returned to teach at the College himself before moving to AUT where he is a Professor and Dean of the Faculty of Business and Law and a Pro Vice-Chancellor.

JOHN BAYFIELD

Mr John Bayfield LRAM ARCM, who taught at the College for more than twenty years, passed away in November 2015 at the age of 84 years. He had lived in retirement at Waiuku for some years before his death. Mr Bayfield had been Head of Music at Saint Kentigern from 1963 to 1985.

Not only as the College music teacher but also as a very accomplished pianist himself, Mr Bayfield was involved at the College with orchestra, choir and musical productions. He also produced a number of entertaining revues. He played the organ at midweek Chapel services and special Easter and Advent services, and he initiated recordings of College music groups and individuals in 1973 and 1981.

In the wider College life, Mr Bayfield was involved for some years in organising distinguished and stimulating speakers for a special senior school civics programme called 'SOMEC', and he was the enthusiastic organiser of a service activity where he took 'UE accredited' students to carry out track maintenance with the Park Rangers at Lake Waikaremoana and later on Little Barrier Island.

Mr Bayfield is survived by his wife Gay and their children and grandchildren.

SIMON RODWAY

Old Collegian Simon Rodway #1557 died in London in October. A Prefect at the College in his final year, Simon attended the Boys' School from 1959 - 1963, and the College from 1964 to 1968.

Simon worked as a copywriter before leaving for London in 1975 where he continued working in advertising. He made the history of London his own speciality, becoming a guide in the 1980s, taking tourists on themed walks of the city.

Simon is survived by his wife Judy whom he married in 1997, a daughter Cara and her husband Miles, and granddaughter Dinah. Simon's brother Paul is also an Old Collegian.

STUART WILSON

Dr Stuart Wilson #113 1954 - 1957 was a foundation boarder at Bruce House. He died in Dunedin in October. Old Collegian Malcolm Wilson attended the funeral service.

ROBERT JACOBS

Mr Robert Jacobs, a long serving teacher whose name is on the College staff honours board, passed away on 9 October 2015 at the age of 81. Mr Jacobs taught in the languages department from 1971 until 1985, with French as his main teaching subject.

Mr Jacobs was a man of many interests including sports, sailing and outdoor education.

Mr Jacobs and his wife Anne had three sons, Mark, Blair and Paul who attended Saint Kentigern College. Mark was tragically lost at sea when the yacht on which he was sailing disappeared in a cyclone in the Coral Sea.

RONALD SELWYN STONE

Mr Ron Stone, teacher at Saint Kentigern College from 1963 to 1989, passed away early in January this year at the age of 78 years. His large funeral in the Chapel of Saint Kentigern was a tribute to a man who made a huge contribution to the development of College life in its early decades.

Ron Stone became Head of Physical Education and Housemaster of Bruce House in his second year at Saint Kentigern. Not only is his tenure of 17 years at Bruce House with responsibility for over 100 teenage boys unparalleled, but his work in developing Physical and Outdoor Education programmes and in sports coaching, and later in organising links between the College and overseas teams and schools, set standards in place for the future development of the College.

A keen sportsman himself, Ron coached the First XV Rugby from 1967 to 1978, developing successful teams, maintaining links with his players and their families that have been maintained till the present day.

The College Silver Jubilee publication summed up some of his involvements: 'Mr Stone has played a very important part in the success of a wide variety of College activities in addition to Rugby. Coaching of Athletics, Cross-Country and assisting Duke of Edinburgh Award candidates have all occupied him over the years. High points, he feels, have been his association with outdoor education - the May Camps at Cashmore Valley, South Island tramping trips and the setting up of the Field Centre at Tongariro National Park.'

After leaving the College and working for Fletcher Challenge, Mr Stone continued to live in Pakuranga and maintained strong links with the College and former students and families through significant work with the Old Collegians Association, and with Jubilees and reunions; a greatly valued link for many with the history of the College. He was a man known for his outgoing personality, generosity of spirit and interest in people.

The Stone family themselves have had a very close association with the College, for Ron and Judy's three children, Natalee, Rachel and Matthew, all grew up on campus; Matthew #5022 attended the College as a student and his wife Narelle became a teacher and House Leader. Natalee's son Oliver recently graduated from Year 13 #12497.

Mr Ron Stone will be remembered by former staff and students alike as a friend and mentor, a man with great enthusiasm and affinity for the outdoors, for his understanding of boys' education and for his wonderful contribution to what makes Saint Kentigern College unique.

Life in the USA!

A number of recent Old Collegians have been successful in gaining places and scholarships to attend universities in the United States. Andrew Qi is well remembered as the International Baccalaureate Dux of the College for 2014 and a member of national champion Premier Boys Tennis Team. He received a scholarship to attend Carleton College in Minnesota. Shuo Yang achieved the highest score among 2014 College students in the International Baccalaureate with 43 points and is studying at the University of Chicago on a scholarship. Leba Korovou attended the College for three years and was a member of the Premier Netball team that won the Auckland title in 2014. Alex Clark also attended the College for three years, winning the national football championship in 2013. Other Old Collegians studying in the USA include Aditya Arolkar (UC Berkeley), William Matheson (Columbia University, New York), Ross McPhie (California State), Joanna Kim (Fresno State), and Cordelia Oh and Arun Prakash (both University of California).

Andrew Qi

College in America has by far been the most engaging experience I've had so far in my life. Liberal arts education, residential life and everything that comes in between have made the first semester in college an unforgettable first step in the long journey that is up ahead.

To sum up my first term in college in one phrase, it was eye-opening. The diversity of people here is amazing. Not just in terms of background but also in terms of hobbies, interests, academic pursuits, future goals and much more. At school, no one has to be afraid of being weird or quirky, because simply everyone is quirky in their own way. Witnessing the diversity of academic subjects available here at Carleton was also a pleasant experience. When I started the semester, I was so sure I would major in economics; after the first term, I cannot be more uncertain of where my future studies are headed. Computer Science? Political Science? East Asian Studies? Luckily, I still have one year left before I have to declare my major.

Classroom discussions are always a highlight of each day. Unlike New Zealand universities where you would expect to be in large lecture halls with hundreds of other students, lectures here consist of small classes, full of dialogue and student discussion. The professors are wonderfully inspiring; they genuinely appreciate everyone's opinions, and they love to learn from their students in return. With many professors being prominent scholars in their respective subjects, it always amazed me how close a connection I could establish with people who are so respected in academia. The courses are certainly tough, more challenging than anything in high school, but the thought-provoking nature of class discussions never make the classes dull.

Outside the classroom, my newfound tennis teammates and residential dorm-mates add so much colour to my college experience as well. For the first time, I'm living with or near friends 24/7. The possibility of going out with friends to do something exciting anytime throughout the day, even at 3am, makes the entire dorm feel as one big family. The tennis team is another extremely supportive family. Although competition season has yet to begin, we still train hard and play hard every week, on court and off court.

Overall, my first term at college has been much more than I expected. Only one of twelve trimesters done and dusted, I can't wait to find out what challenges lie in the semesters ahead.

Shuo Yang

I am currently studying at the College of the University of Chicago. I am undecided about my major. I am considering majoring in economics but am unsure yet - one of the great things in my opinion about the University of Chicago is that you do not need to decide on a major until your second or third year, and you can also easily change majors. So currently I am taking classes to fulfil my core requirements (humanities, social sciences, maths and chemistry sequences for this quarter). It has been very enjoyable so far!

Leba Korovou

Old Collegian Leba Korovou (2014) originally started playing basketball to strengthen her netball skills. Now her basketball prowess has earned her a lucrative scholarship to a United States university. Leba has been offered a five-year, fully paid scholarship to attend Missouri Western State University, where she is playing on the women's basketball team in NCAA Division II. She was scouted at the Pacific Games in Papua New Guinea, where she won the gold medal playing for her native Fiji. While at Saint Kentigern, Leba was named the Senior Netball Player of the Year in 2013 and earned Sports Honours and Colours as well as a Silver Fern for representing the New Zealand Under-20 team. She is grateful to coaches Tania Hunter and Colin Driscoll for furthering her sporting talents while at the College. 'They gave me a lot of opportunities and taught me so much,' she says. Leba is studying at Missouri Western State's Craig School of Business, where she is majoring in Finance.

Alex Clark

Alex Clark has quickly become a key member of his university football team. Alex earned an athletic scholarship to Bethany College in Kansas, USA, after leaving Saint Kentigern last year. The scholarship covers tuition, housing, books, meal plan, travel expenses and many other additional costs. Alex is studying marketing and plays in the midfield for the Bethany soccer team. Around 800 students attend Bethany, whose sports teams are known as the Swedes. 'Some of the top colleges I have played against include Oklahoma Wesleyan University who are ranked number two in the nation for men's soccer and Baker University who are ranked number five in the nation,' says Alex. 'The quality and intensity of the game is a big step up from the level I was previously playing in New Zealand but I have benefitted from this and have developed as a player.'

'Life here at Bethany has been a new challenge, not a difficult challenge but a challenge that has taken some time to adapt to. Classes are taught in a different fashion to Saint Kentigern and the workload is quite hefty but I am enjoying my time here and I have made many new friends. Although I am still adapting to the lifestyle, I feel that I have found the perfect college for me. I am able to play soccer at the highest level I possibly can and work towards a degree in what I enjoy and am passionate about.'

'Although there are many differences between the two education systems, Saint Kentigern College has prepared me to be versatile and be prepared for change and I have benefitted from this here at Bethany.'

CAN YOU HELP?

We are seeking willing contacts who can offer work experience for our senior students

Head of Student Services, Mrs Sandra Shaw is working with the Parents and Friends Association to build a list of contacts who would be willing to offer our senior students one of the following:

- Work experience
- A visit to a work place to observe a wide range of occupations
- The opportunity to shadow an employer
- The chance to talk to an employer about a particular career

If you are able to offer assistance, Chairman of the Parents and Friends Association, Mr David Courtney would be pleased to hear from you.

SKOCA Netball

With thanks to Old Collegian Sharnika Leleni

The Old Collegians vs Premier Netball team fixture was as enjoyable as ever. The teams recognised that the objective was to have fun and so participated accordingly. The competitive edge was still evident though and so it was no surprise when the difference in score at the end of the game was only two goals in favour of the Premier girls. The aftermatch function was also a highlight of the evening with delicious finger food to share while chatting about memories and netball stories from the past. There was also a good turnout of current College parents who participated enthusiastically in the festivities. A suggestion of having a three-match series next year as a preseason warm up was welcomed by both teams. It can only get bigger and better!

SKOCA Golf Day

This year's SKOCA golf day was played at a new venue and with a change of purpose. Rather than focusing on fairways made and greens in regulation, the emphasis moved to fellowship and fundraising. Sixteen groups of four took part in the tournament at Remuera Golf Club, with the goal to raise money for the Old Collegians Scholarship Fund as much as shoot low scores. The ambrose competition was played in great spirit, with additional incentives of prizes for closest to the pin and longest drive as well as a Volkswagen Golf TSI R-Line on the line for a hole in one on the 17th. The Bayleys team of Nick Bayley, Mike Brickland, Scott Cordes and Joe Grima came out on top, with Nick, Mike and Joe also winning individual prizes. Chris Dowdle, John Howard and Marty Winter took out the remaining closest to the pin honours. Following the round, the groups socialised over a meal and bid in a silent auction on items generously donated by the event's sponsors. With help from benefactors including Giltrap Group, Lexel Systems, ANZ Bank, Ricoh, Toshiba and Test & Tag, a significant amount was raised for the scholarship fund, which makes a real difference to the recipients.

Manase Latu

Old Collegian, Manase Latu was surprised and thrilled to hear he had been awarded a 2015 Creative New Zealand Arts Pasifika Award in recognition of his outstanding contribution to Pacific arts. A talented tenor, Manase received the 2015 Josefa Enari Memorial Award. Named after the late Samoan opera singer who was at the forefront of Pacific opera, the $4,000 award recognises exceptional Pacific singers from classical genres.

Manase is well remembered from his time at the College for his magnificent voice, having played lead roles in musical productions, winning the Solo Music competition two years in a row and for his significant input to the choral programme. College Head of Choirs, Mr Lachlan Craig was one of the first people to recognise Manase's potential. Mr Craig took the young Manase along to meet Associate Professor, Karen Grylls, the director of the University of Auckland Chamber Choir. Manase joined the choir and shortly after, while still at the College, was awarded the George Wilson Turner Scholarship to attend the School of Music at the University of Auckland. He is currently in his second year of a conjoint degree, pursuing a Bachelor of Music in Classical Voice performance, and Bachelor of Commerce in Accounting. Manase says his dream is to one day sing opera on the world's stage.

To get there, he is singing with Auckland Chamber Choir, New Zealand Youth Choir, Voices New Zealand Chamber choir, 4Shades, SOTO Voce and as a soloist for various choral societies in and outside of Auckland.

Rory Nolan

Rory was no stranger to the stage during his time at College, an interest he has continued since graduating. Since returning to New Zealand earlier this year after 8 months living in the Netherlands, he is currently juggling his acting commitments whilst working as a lawyer at the commercial law firm Bell Gully.

Rory is now appearing as one of the leading roles in Amici Productions' version of the Andrew Lloyd Webber classic Phantom of the Opera, playing the part of Raoul. The production is playing at Auckland's Civic Theatre in February/March 2016. He is hugely excited for the role which is easily his biggest theatre credit to date, and feels it is a dream come true to be acting in such an iconic musical on the beautiful Civic stage.

Rory attended the Boys' School from 2003-2004 and joined the College in 2005 until graduating in 2009. He is best remembered at the College for the lead role he played as Jean Valjean in the production of 'Les Miserables'. He says this role was a particular highlight and that it was amazing to play such an epic and iconic musical role at such a young age.

'I was relatively inexperienced at that stage, and I feel that it was the time I spent playing this role which ignited my passion for performance and equipped me with the necessary theatre skills to progress forward,' he says. He credits the support from the fantastic Music and Drama Departments for the tremendous opportunities for him to thrive in Performing Arts, in particular Ms Emma Bishop and Mr Ross Gerritsen. Rory has also had vocal tuition with Robyn Kennerly (who teaches singing at the College) since 2008.

Since graduating from the College, Rory has appeared in numerous productions including a featured ensemble role in Miss Saigon (Auckland Civic Theatre, 2011), and several leading roles including The Artilleryman in Jeff Wayne's The War of the Worlds (2012), and Sky in Mamma Mia (Auckland Civic Theatre, 2014). Rory has toured professionally as a performer with Operatunity Entertainment since 2013, completing three nationwide tours performing in musical theatre productions in 25 centres around New Zealand. Rory has also worked as an actor, appearing in several television commercials, plays and also had a brief stint on the long-running soap opera Shortland Street, playing petty criminal, Jimmy Taylor.

Fellow Old Collegians, Mark Bradley (2010) and Tiffany Utama (2009) are also involved in the production.

For those interested in seeing Rory in Phantom of the Opera, tickets are now available on Ticketmaster: http://www.ticketmaster.co.nz/The-Phantom-Of-The-Opera-tickets/artist/804174?tm_link=edp_Artist_Name

Alice Boyd

Alice Boyd represented the College in fencing for seven years, and captained the squad for three of those, becoming the first girl to hold that position. She won the Auckland secondary school and U20 titles in her final two years and represented New Zealand at age group level. Here she reports on her experience as part of the 90-strong NZ team at the World University Games.

'I left the College in 2014 and since then have gone onto start my Bachelor's degree, majoring in nutrition at Auckland University. During semester one, I managed to juggle university as well as training for national competitions for fencing. I had two podium finishes at the open national events and this led to my nomination for the World University Games, held in Gwangju, Korea.

I was subsequently selected by the New Zealand Olympic Committee, along with two other Auckland fencers. Training leading up to the games was long and intense, made more challenging by end of semester exams.

I left for Singapore where my coach and I met with some New Zealand fencers who were competing at the Asian Senior Championships. For a week, I trained at the national fencing centre in Singapore, fencing against some of the world and Asian champions from countries like Korea, China, Japan, Kazakhstan and Chinese Taipei. The experience and confidence which I gained through this training changed the way in which I fenced, becoming more aggressive and confident. During this week, I had lessons from one of the national coaches from Kazakhstan.

We then travelled to Seoul, where we were met by the University Games officials. We were put on a train to Gwangju along with athletes from Canada, Poland and the Netherlands. We arrived late at night and were greeted by the New Zealand delegation. During our time at the games, we were treated like celebrities. There were 125 countries and thousands of athletes. There is so much prestige about these games and this was constantly emphasised by FISU, the international university sports federation.

Training during the games was early in the morning until lunchtime, when there was usually a New Zealand team function in the afternoon. As a team, we were welcomed at a traditional temple, witnessed the raising of the New Zealand flag and walked into Gwangju Stadium as athletes for the opening ceremony. This was a highlight which every athlete should experience.

I came 46th at the games. As this was my first international competition, this result wasn't disappointing as I was also the youngest competitor. The nature of the sport and competition is extremely different to fencing in New Zealand. The only way to gain experience and achieve results is to train and compete overseas. I would thoroughly recommend the World University Games for any student who wishes to become a high performance athlete. These games are treated as preparation for the Olympic Games. The village, training venues, competitions and ceremonies are structured like the Olympics.

This trip would not have been possible without the support of the Old Collegians Association. Their kind donation made it possible for me to travel and train in both Singapore and Korea. The skills which I have learnt both in fencing and experiences will be of benefit for me back home in New Zealand.

I thoroughly enjoyed my time as part of the New Zealand team and I look forward to competing again in 2017 in Chinese Taipei.'

Fellow Old Collegians Daniel Hunter (swimming) and Daniel Lowe (table tennis) also competed in the World University Games.

Save the Date

The second annual golf day to commemorate Old Collegian, Niki Dow is being held on March 4. Niki graduated from the College in 2008 and was in Portugal pursuing his passion for winemaking when he was tragically killed in a car accident in 2013. In his memory, a group of Old Collegians formed a charity to raise funds to assist a budding vintner to study at Lincoln University. The first golf day in 2015 was a huge success raising funds beyond expectation. The 2016 event will again be held at Whitford Park Golf Club followed by a function at Turanga Creek Winery. To get involved, contact principal organiser Myron Simpson at nd.charitabletrust@gmail.com or 021 105 0196.

Ceri Mcvinnie

Old Collegian Ceri McVinnie (2009) made the top five in the Miss World New Zealand pageant and was crowned Miss Tourism International.

'Life has been very hectic for me since winning my title. I think the greatest thing about winning is I now have a platform to make a difference. I am proud to have been made a spokesperson for Women's Refuge and am working on fundraising for them and spreading awareness about domestic violence in New Zealand. This is a cause close to my heart and I hope that I can make a difference, even to just one young woman.

I have also been made an ambassador for Brand Value Ltd, a company which includes makeup brands such as Radiessence and Natural Glow. In my years since leaving the College, I lived in the Waikato, spending time in both Matamata and Hamilton. I have a Level 5 certificate in Early Childhood Education and am also a qualified nanny, so have spent the last few years working in preschools and nannying. I am now back in Auckland and working in a preschool which I love doing, while studying towards my Bachelor of Teaching ECE by correspondence.'

Albert Yen

Since graduating from the College in 2004, Dr Albert Yen has made rapid progress in his dentistry career. Albert started at Saint Kentigern in Year 9 and went on to excel in the academic and sporting fields. He was a member of the Premier Boys' Basketball team for three years, winning a Counties title in that time. He was also part of the Scholars' Class as well as being a Cargill House prefect. In Year 13 he studied all the sciences, which is fitting given his choice of career. However, he also enjoyed English and says it has been a big influence on his success. 'I look back and English is really important for what I do now - speaking to patients and writing academic papers and business plans.' Albert went on to study health science and dentistry at the University of Otago for six years before starting his career in Wellington. In 2012 he relocated back to Auckland, a stone's throw from the College at Bright White Dental in Pakuranga Plaza. He has climbed the ranks to become the principal dentist at Bright White, a promotion which is almost unheard of in the short time he has been practising. Albert says being a Son of Kentigern put him in great stead to be a leader in his field. 'Saint Kentigern gave me a sound platform to build to where I am now. The good habits and manners that I learnt make a real difference in the workforce.' He is now giving back to Saint Kentigern by hosting senior students at his practice who are interested in pursuing dentistry.

Andrew Marck

Andrew Marck graduated from the College in 2009 and has gone on to achieve success in his chosen sport of baseball as well as in business. Andrew had already represented the New Zealand Men's Baseball Team while at the College and has been a pivotal member ever since, as a starting pitcher. His baseball talent has taken him around the world, to play in Canada, the USA, Australia and in the World Baseball Classic in Taipei. He has won a number of New Zealand club championships with the Howick Pakuranga Hawks and been named most valuable player of the tournament. As well as making the most of every baseball opportunity that has come to him, Andrew has completed a Bachelor of Business majoring in management and marketing at the Auckland University of Technology. He has combined his passion for diamond sports with his commercial acumen as the owner of The Fieldhouse, which operates batting training cages and is the country's leading baseball and softball equipment and uniform supplier with two locations in Avondale and Pakuranga. In February, he will represent the New Zealand Diamondblacks again in the World Baseball Classic qualifiers against Australia, Philippines and South Africa in Sydney in February. Of his time at the College, Andrew says he realised the value of commerce teacher, Mr Paul Ventner's classes as he went through university and into business.
